type conversions

Python performs implicit data type conversions automatically to operate on numeric values. If you want to specify the data type, you can use constructor functions.

```
int(var)
>> <class 'int'>
```

Setting the data type as integer

```
float(var)
>> <class 'float'>
```

Setting the data type as float